NEW-YORK STATE. Ist District-(Richmond, Suffolk, Kings and Queen Counties.)-At a Convention, held at Jamaica, on Monday evening, a full attendance was present from all parts of the District. Resolutions against the Nebraska bill, for a Prohibitory Liquor law and the teket headed Hon. Myron H. Clark were adopted. the Temperance and Anti-Nebraska movements. GABRIEL P. DISOSWAY of Richmond County, on the first ballot was declared the unanimous nominee for ongress in the 1st District. There are now five candidates in the field-Anti-Nebraska and Temperance, G. P. DISOSWAY, (Whig); Whig, H. W. VAIL w-Nothing, Dr. W. W. VALK, (Anti-Prohibition) Hard, DANIEL B. ALLEN; Soft, Dr. FREDERICK W.

We have already announced that the Whigs of Richmond have thrown overboard Mr. Vail, at their County Ratification meeting, and as they did not designate any other candidate, Mr. Disosway will, probably, receive a strong vote from his connec-tion with the Whig party and opposition to the Slavery

LETTER FROM THE HON. JAMES MAURICE. To the Editor of The N. Y. Daily Tribune.

Sin: For the many complimentary allusions which have at various times appeared in the columns of THE TRIBUNE in relation to my course on the Nebrasthe Tribuse in relation to my course on the Nebrastabili, I desire to return my sincere thanks. What I did was simply my duty. And I believe that fourfiths of the voters of the District—a number very considerably greater than that by which I was elected—cordially approve of my conduct, and have thereby awarded to me the highest meed a true and loyal representative can hope to receive. I ask nothing

The Nebraska Territory came down to us solemnly dedicated to Freedom. It was reserved for the use of the people of the free States as our part of a common purchase. We could go and live there uncon-laminated by the presence of Slavery. In my judgment not one inch of it ought to be relinquished. It is our birthright, and should be our children's inheritance. If the North wills, it may still be rescued. If the North is now supine or indifferent, it is gone forever. I resisted the repeal of the Missouri restriction from first to last. I am in favor of its revival and restoration at the earliest practicable period; and I am opposed to any increase of the slave element of power in the Federal Government.

I was not, and could not be with any propriety, a candidate for renomination to Congress. In our Distriet the nominee is taken in turn from the different counties: and two years ago, when Queen's County claimed the nomination, I had the honor to be se lected. It would not, it seems to me, be just or honorable to attempt to change that usage now because its effect is to exclude me from the canvass; and hence my name was not brought before the Nominating Convention. Besides, the Hards, as a party, approve of the Nebraska Bill, and the Soft platform I could not stand upon, if I tried.

Very respectfully and obediently yours.

Mangeth, L. I., Oct. 50, 1831.

THE CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE IN DISTRICT I.

To the Editor of The N. Y. Tribune.

To the Editor of The N. Y. Tribune.

Sin: In your paper of the 28th is an article calculated to mislead (though no doubt unintentionally,) the independent voters of the 1st Congressional District. Dr. F. W. Loan is an earnest and uncompromising opponent of the Nebraska iniquity and of Slavery extension. He is a gentleman of integrity, does not feel bound by platforms, and if elected will represent this District faithfully on that question. H. W. Vatt. is a Sliver-Gray, (I was going to say dyed in the moof, but presume he prefers cotton.

candidate for Congress in the IVth District, writes to inform us that he is not a pro-Slavery man. He says:

"I have endured more sacrifices in the cause of negro emancipation than ninety-nine out of every hundred babblers who prate of Freedom. The records of Henrico and Goochland Counties, Virginia, will show that my father freed nearly a hundred slaves, when I was an infant, the natural increase of which might at this day have made me a rich man but I can say honestly that I have never regretted the act. I never owned a slave, or an interest in a slave, except in one case: this was a negress, who I believe is now in Ohio, and I shall certainly not claim the benefit of the Fugitive Slave Law to recover her. In regard to Slavery, I believe with Henri Clay that it is an evil which will yield to the inevitable laws of population sconer and more safely than to political agitation, which tends to disturb the harmony of the Union rather than to benefit the African race."

POLITICAL TROUBLES. - Twenty of the members, just one-half the late Whig Convention of Hudson County, N. They claim that another member voted with them, and that, being in a majority, the Chairman disregarded their rights and rendered it necessary for them to retire. They therefore regard the nominations as irregular and not binding; and ask that another Whig County Convention be called.

FIRST ANNUAL ADDRESS BEFORE THE ALUMNI; CENTENNIAL ANNIVERSARY OF THE GRANTING OF THE CHARTER. The first annual address before the Alumni of Columbia College was delivered last evening, in the Lecture-room of Clinton Hall, Astor-place, by the Rev. Wm. R. Williams, D.D., yesterday being the centennial anniversary of the day on which its charter was granted to Columbia College. There was a large attendance of both sexes.

The Chair was taken by Rost. Ketit. On the platform, along with the Chairman and Orator, were seated Dr. Authon and Dr. King. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. ANTHON; and DR. WILLIAMS then delivered

THE ADDRESS. of which the following is the substance:

The day now gathering its shades around us brings the termination of a century since the first organization of Columbia College by the Colonial Government. Changes, vast and varied, have in the interval passed over the land. Standing where we do, we find it difficult to cast our ideas into the middle of the eighteenth century; but when the motto of Columbia College was adopted, it placed as its corper-stone the honor of God and the advancement of the Commonwealth. The Americans are like their progenitors, the English, a Dail, Hogencamp Edward Linnen.

The American Action of the New-York Phonography Defore the Young Men's Deating Trieune Yesterday and the theme a practical race; and on this resemblance shall be based few years the wreck of the Spanish Armada littered the British coast, and Spain's spiritual domination cessed forever. A similar period of torpor and despair preceded our restitution. In England the Commonwealth was overthrown; the ruler seemed to be about to become the head of a new dynasiy; but no Hampden had shed his blood for nought. The year 1734 in our history seems to have some analogy to these periods. An overshadowing despotism of an all-hlighting inficielity had grown strong, and our country required to watch well to preserve her own few liberties. It was the age of Frederick the Great, waiting behind a hedge of bayonets to aggrandize himself; of the great-souled Maria Theresa, of the corrupt Louis XV and Madame Pompedour; of Voltaire, "the father of the unfaithful;" of Didcrot and his conditions, who were engaged on that Cyclopedia which soon exercised so malign an influence. Then a brother of Marshal Keith of Prussia considered the greatest oddity of Rousseau to be that he still believed in a God. Bolingbroke had not long died, having left to his executor the charge to print certain infidel publications; who, when they were about appearing, said, "In half an hour Christianity will "tremble." But the ague was slow to come, and after half a century it leaves little trace of its existence. Then it became the policy of the British Government to contract our few liberties; but a fresh putting forth of the Gospel's energies arose among the most remote of mankiful. In the days of Dongan, it is said, a College was set up by the Jesuits in this City; but only a few students entered it, and it soon most remote of mankind. In the days of Dongan, it is said, a College was set up by the Jesuits in this City: but only a few students entered it, and it soon died out. The failure is not to be regretted, nor the fact that the field was left unoccupied for better hands. Berkeley, Bishop of Cloyne, it is said, proposed to found in the Bermudas a College for the Ladians, and his street exposition of his project convinced even those who scoffed at it. On visiting our shores, however, he seems to have thought a revision of his scheme useful. He visited Kale, and was intimate with Johnson, the first President of Columbia. The line.

PARTE ATTACK MUCA-

The line. "Westward the star of empire holds its way." is well known. He recommended a high standard of classical scholarship, and Columbia College has atood well by the recommendation. Bentiey was then dead: Louth was living: as also were Swift, Watt and Doddridge. Whitfield and Wesley, who had both labored on this Continent, were pursuing their Christian toils; and from the latter came the inspiration which has given us Naesau Hail and Princeton. Johnson and Warburton were the great lights of literature at that time. Gray had just issued his Elegy in a Country Church-yard. Among statesmen was the towering figure of Pitt: Burke, Grattan, Sheridan, and Curran were but boys; and many other wonderful celebrities might be adduced to fix more vividity the date of the firth of our alma mater. Watt, Warren Hastings, and Robert Clive, Cook, Gibbon, Goldsmith, belong to that time. In this country there was political restlessness which the Governor shrunk from attempting to allay. A laughable ignorance of our geography was displayed by the Colonial Department in England, and a strong disposition existed to suppress the rising rivalship in manufactures to Birmingham and Manchester, on the banks of the Ohio. A writer in The Gestleman's Magazine warned the English that they had already more territory in America than they could populate in five hundred years. Our population, now 500,000, was then only 15,000. Near New-Rochelle were emigrants of the Hugueaut faith: German refugues from religious intolerance were mingled with these, and to all was added a good English stock.

Within the bounds of the Confederacy "The Six "Nations" still existed, even at the time Jonathan Edwards composed his most shatuse metaphysical works. The Jesuits had labored among the native tribes and the pious James, King of England, instructed Gov. Dongan, to favor them, although they were chiefly Frenchmen. But Dongan thought better disobey the order. Washington, then a young man, commenced his military career against the French, who were then profe Paris and Berlin have had their great universities—let New York have hers. Each country requires a system of education adapted to itself; there is such a thing as a plethora of education, which might crush native character: such an education would not be practical, and therefore not American. Let me conclude with an earnest prayer for Columbia College and her adherance to her motto, which devotes her to the glory of God and the good of mankind.

The Rev. Dr. Anthon then pronouned the benediction, and a large number of the Alumni repaired to the St. Nicholas Hotel to assist at the dinner.

THE DINNER.

What brilliant things were said and done at the dinner the public are not permitted to know, since our reporter was peremptorily refused admittance even to the room. The spread was no doubt magnificent, for such is the habit of the landlords of the house; but of the details we can give no idea, save what may be gathered from the following fragments of a Bill of Fare, the only intelligible thing permitted to escape from the room:

This was all that could be seen. All that was heard was a request to the landlord, just before the opening of the wine, to "order out all these dem'd waiters;" and then the confused muruur of voices, the fusilade of corks, and the interludes of songs and cheers commenced. At about 2 o clock this morning, the noise began to die away, the corks became quiet, the music faded, the doors were opened, overcosts and hats were selected with great gravity and deliberation, carriages were called, the anniversary was over, and orthography was not what it should be. The strangest confusion prevailed digraph chas different ter. For instance, the war, ostrich and church, sounds in the words chorus, on sometimes mispronounced absurdly, because of the v. v. ying sound given nounced absurdly, because of the v. v. ying sound given nounced absurdly, because of the v. v. ying sound given nounced absurdly, because of the v. v. ying sound given nounced absurdly, because of the v. v. ying sound given nounced absurdly, because of the v. ying sound given nounced absurdly, because of the v. ying sound given nounced absurdly, because of the v. ying sound given nounced absurdly, because of the v. ying sound given nounced absurdly, because of the v. ying sound given nounced absurdly, because of the v. ying sounds in the termination, or with the sound of tetters, —they are as inconstant as the moon. Now the difficulty is that the letters of our alphabet are not numerous enough. There are over forty sounds in the English tougue, and we have but twenty-six letters to represent them; hence the confusion. The letter which represents or assumes to represent the night of the history of witten language. First the picture, then the heirogliph, or symbol; then the syllable, and last of all the letter which represents or assumes to represent the primary sounds of the language. What we want in a perfect written language, is a lucid analysis of its elementary sounds, and an appropriate character for each sound. This desideratum the science of phonetics secures, and it should be the object of every philanthrapist to spread a knowledge of it abroad. The speaker, in conclusion, referred to the advantages arising from the study of phonography. It is, he said, an excellent mental discipline, for it gives calerity and promptness to our conceptions of things and words. The day is not far distant when it will be deemed an essential part of education. There is no profession to which it would not be of use. To a young man entering upon professional life, it would be of inca

The subject of appointing a Deputy Superintendent to the Workhouse was brought up, and elicited an extended debate on the political principles the appointee must be possessed of, and finally the action of the Board was deferred until after election.

Mr. W., is his preparatory remarks, denounced the conduct of that portion of his brethrem in the ministry who kept silence on this great question in the most forcible language that the English vocabulary furnished him with, and portrayed the evils of intemperance in an eloquent manner. Mr. Wakely has for twenty years advocated Temperance, wherever and whenever he had an opportunity, somewhere the contrary to the wish of his official brethren, and that the contrary to the wish of his official brethren, and the secontrary to the wish of his official brethren, and died. LECTURE BY MRS. CUTLER.

The lecture of Mrs. CUTLER at the Tabornselo last evening was thinly attended, owing to the rain and the extremely dirty condition of the streets, which in spite of all the money that is wasted upon the effort, are in a condition scarcely more fit for a lady's promenade than a farmer's barn-yard or pig-pen. Upon such streets, on such an evening, we can hardly expect many to turn out to hear a woman deliver a public discourse, particularly when it is upon such a subject as the rights of woman, among which they include the right to stay at home when the pavements of Breadway are covered with a semi-liquid substance made out of a mixture of horse-droppings, house-sweepings, and rotten garbage.

It is true the playactors did not act to empty benches, but the class who fill them are not the class who love to listen to such a pleasant, instructive discourse as that of Mrs. Cutier at the Tabernacle last evening. all the money that is wasted upon the effort, are in &

The President delivered an address, reviewing the history of the Association, its objects, its present cirhistory of the Association, its objects, its present circumstances, and glancing at its prospects for the future. An essay on "Books and Reading" was read by DAVID B. SCOTT, Esq., Principal of Ward School No. 40. A vote of thanks was tendered the speakers for their interesting and instructive addresses. Several new members were elected: among them, S. S. Randall, Esq., City Superintendent. The following subject was discussed: "Which is best calculated to "develop the Faculties of the Mind-the American "College Course, to which all the students are compelled to adhere, or the University System, in which the hent of each mind is carefully considered and "educated in that direction?" Mesers. Brinsmads, Walsh and McEcLicott spoke upon the subject. Mr. S. P. Andrews extended an invitation to the Association to attend a lecture to be given by Mr. McLantin, author of a "System of Writing," in the Mercantile Library building, Astor place. Accepted. The Association then adjourned till the last Saturday evening of November.

NEW SYSTEM OF WRITING The lecture on Monday evening at the Hall of the Mcccantile Library in Astor-place, upon his new method of teaching Penmanship, by Mr. William S. MacLaurin, aided by Stephen Pearl Andrews, was well attended, not withstanding the inclemency of the evening. Mr. James N. McElligott and N. P. Beers of Ward School No. 15, were present, and gave their testimony to the results of this new method of treattestimony to the results of this new method of treating writing as a gymnastic exercise of the arm, fiagers and hand, as they have witnessed it in their own school. Mr. MacLaurin explained the process of reasoning by which he was led to the invention, and pointed out the defects of all the systems heretofore in use. Mr. Andrews asserted that the art of teaching writing has not heretofore existed—that the art of writing a business hand has sever been taught in schools or by writing-masters, and has always to be learned afterward in the counting house or office by actual practice in rapid writing—that it is then only learned by the few who possess a special faculty for it—that by the reform introduced by Mr. MacLaurin, rapidity and elegance are united throughout the whole course of practice, as they are to be afterward in the business of life—and finally, that by the kind of scientific training which his system gives, the result is not left to depend on any such special endowment, but is rendered a necessity, and that every pupil who goes through the practice must, by a kind of natural necessity, come out an elegant and rapid writer.
